The aim of this research is to find out: 1) the influence of green knowledge on green purchase intention of environmentally-friendly motorbikes 2) the influence of green product on green purchase intention of environmentally-friendly motorbikes 3) the influence of green price on green purchase intention of environmentally-friendly motorbikes 4) the differences in green purchase intention based on interest in the type of environmentally-friendly motorcycle. The type of research used is associative with a quantitative approach using a questionnaire. The population of this study is generation Z who lives on the island of Java with 100 respondents. The sampling technique used was non probability sampling with purposive sampling method. The data analysis technique used multiple linear regression analysis, T test, F test, and independent samples t-test, using the SPSS 25 application: 1) green knowledge influenced the green purchase intention of environmentally-friendly motorbikes 2) green product influenced the green purchase intention of environmentally-friendly motorbikes 3) green price had no influence on the green purchase intention of environmentally-friendly motorbikes 4) there were no differences in green purchase intention based on interest in the type of environmentally-friendly motorcycle.
